Political systems range from the far left to the far right. Communism for example is a social structure in which classes are abolished and property is commonly controlled. Fascism seeks to organize a nation on corporatist perspectives, values, and systems such as the political system and the economy. A monarchy is when all political power is absolutely or nominally lodged with an individual. Capitalism however is when the means of production are privately owned by the rich.

1. What is a monarchy? _____
2. What is communism? _____
3. What political system is used in your country? _____
4. What are the differences between facism and capitalism? _____
